A Trip to Gatuna

Mutoni had never been to the Gatuna Border Post. She heard about it from her father. One day, Mutoni requested her father to take her to Gatuna.

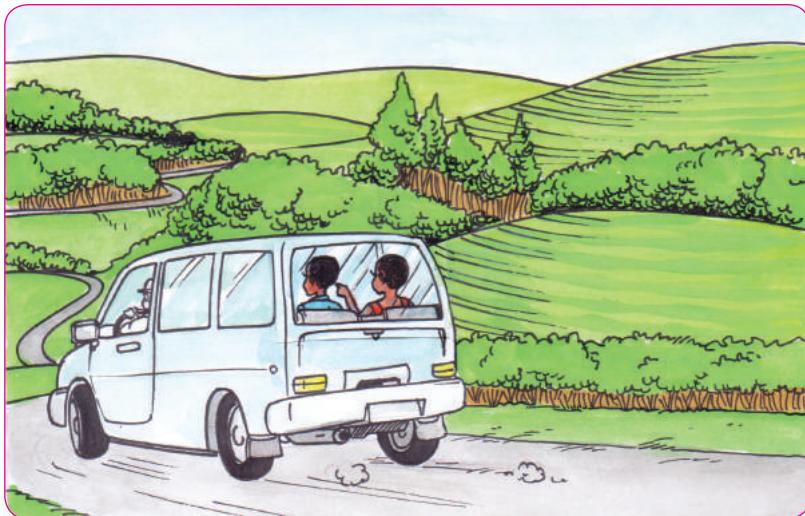

"Yes, I can," Mutoni's father said. "I can go with you over the weekend. I will not be working on Saturday." They planned to leave early the following Saturday.

"I am going to Gatuna Border Post on Saturday," Mutoni told her friend when they met. Mary was interested in going too.

"I am going to ask for permission from my parents. I would like to come with you," Mary told Mutoni.

Mary's parents gave her permission to go. Mutoni's father asked her to be ready by 5.45 am on Saturday.

They set off at exactly 6:00 a.m. on Saturday. The two pupils were very excited by what they saw along the way. There were terraced hills, meandering roads and vast tea plantations.

At the border, they found a long line of travellers from different countries. Some had come all the way from Kenya and were being cleared by the border authorities.

Mutoni's father took the two pupils through all the different sections. He explained to them how important Gatuna was to the economy of Rwanda; just like their Social Studies teacher had said. Mary promised to tell her teacher about the trip when school would open in January.

Look at each of the pictures about the different weather conditions above, and write a paragraph explaining each situation.

Grammar point

The first conditional is used to express a future action as determined by another factor. It is also called IF 1. It shows the possibility of something happening if a certain condition is fulfilled.

It is made up of two parts:

The IF clause and the main clause.

If it rains, he will weed the garden.

The coloured is the IF clause while the part after the comma is the main clause.

The Present Simple Tense is used in the IF clause while the future simple is used in the main clause.

The first conditional can be expressed using two structures:

1. If condition then result. or
2. Result then if condition.

For example

1. If it rains, I will plant maize.
2. If it rains, I will carry an umbrella.
3. We shall rest if the weather is hot.
4. The trees will shake if it rains.

Where the main clause starts a conditional sentence, there is no comma added after the main clause as seen in numbers 3 and 4. However, a comma is always necessary after the IF clause if it starts a sentence before you can continue with the main clause. As seen in numbers 1 and 2.

Activity 3

Construct five sentences in the first conditional (IF 1) to explain how their programs change because of the weather changes.

Exercise 5

For example

1. I am going to Huye on Friday evening. I hope it won’t be cold.

2. I will put on my new gumboots when it rains.

Teacher Murenzi was having a class discussion with his Primary Six class. They were talking about unacceptable behaviour in society.

“What are some of the things that people do that you do not like?” he asked.

“I do not like it when people smoke near where I am,” answered Immaculate.

“I hate young boys and girls who take drugs and drink beer,” said Tom.

“What do you think causes young people to do that?” Teacher Murenzi asked.

“I think it is because of peer pressure,” said Chantal.

“Very true, Chantal,” Teacher Murenzi answered. “Most young people are forced to do bad things because they want to have friends. You shouldn’t smoke, take drugs or drink because your friends are doing it.”

“Teacher, I have a question,” said Amos.

“Go ahead and ask, Amos.”

“People in our estate gamble and bet a lot. Is it okay?”

“Good question, Amos. Gambling and betting can be addictive. We should not take part in any activity that can be addictive,” said Teacher Murenzi.

- Read the title and subheading to find out what the text is about.
- Look at the pictures.
- Read the first and last sentence of each paragraph. You don't have to read every word in the sentence. For very short texts just identify the keyword and run your eyes through the words near it.

- a) Practise skimming of different books, storybooks and newspapers with your friend.

Finding words

What do you do when you want to look up a word in the dictionary? Do you start from the first page? The easiest way is to go straight to the first letter or syllable of the word you want to identify. This is referred to as scanning. In addition to checking dictionary entries, you use scanning to:

- Look up a word from the index or table of contents of a book.
- Read a timetable to know when the next English lesson will be.

The Daughter of the Bush

Kabanda was out taking care of his father's cows when he saw a beautiful girl. "Hello, how are you?" he asked.

"Hello. I am fine and you?" the girl answered.

"What are you doing in the bush? This is not a good place for a girl to be," Kabanda said.

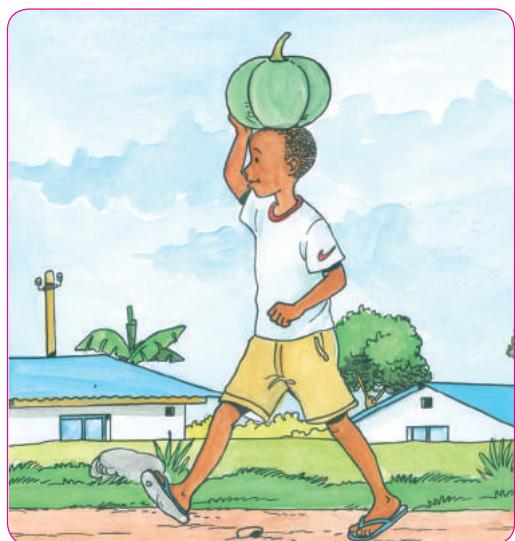

"I stay here. This is my home. I am the daughter of the bush," the girl replied. Then the girl disappeared.

Kabanda realised that he had not asked the girl her name. He looked for her everywhere but did not find her.

However, there was a huge pumpkin where the girl had been standing. "I will just take this pumpkin home and give it to my mother," Kabanda said to himself. "Then I will tell her about the most beautiful girl I ever saw that was standing near the pumpkin".

That evening, Kabanda gave the pumpkin to his mother. He also told her about the mysterious girl.

Before going to sleep, Munezero, Kabanda's mother decided to boil some milk. She put the milk in a cup and put it next to the pumpkin. She went out to wash the saucepan. When she came back, she saw a beautiful girl sitting next to the pumpkin. She was drinking the milk that Munezero had boiled!

Munezero realized that this was the girl that Kabanda had told her about. She did not quarrel with the girl. She just bade her goodnight and then went to sleep.

Munezero was very happy. In the morning, she told Kabanda that she had seen the girl he had talked to her about.

How Eagle And Hen Became Enemies

A long time ago, Eagle and Hen were very good neighbours. They lived together peacefully.

One day, Hen went to Eagle to borrow a stitching needle. She wanted to make clothes for her chicks. Eagle warmly welcomed Hen and even gave her the needle.

After using the needle, Hen forgot to keep it away safely. Her chicks saw the needle and went to play with it. Hen’s compound was full of rubbish and unfortunately the needle got lost.

Hen tried to look for the needle but she did not find it. The compound was full of litter. She became afraid and did not tell Eagle that the needle was lost.

One day, Eagle wanted to use his needle. He went to Hen’s house to get it. That is when he discovered what had happened. Eagle was so disappointed and very angry.

“It is simple. Each time I come here and I don’t get my needle, I shall pick one chick and go with it,” he told Hen.

From that day onwards, Eagle still takes Hen’s chicks. Hen continuously searches for the lost needle by scratching the ground with her feet. She has also taught her chicks to run away and hide under her wings whenever they see an eagle.

6.3 Writing compositions

Activity 1

Discuss with your group members and come up with reasons why we write. Present your group’s findings in class.

Activity 2

Read the composition writing tips given below. Make short notes in your exercise book.

Composition writing tips

There are a few questions that you need to ask yourself before you start writing. These are:

- a) Who are the characters in your story?
- b) What is the main problem to be addressed?
- c) How does the story end or how is the problem solved?
- d) Does my story flow nicely? These questions will also help you to organise your story into the three major parts.

These are introduction, main body and conclusion

The introduction or first paragraph helps to get the attention of the reader. It also helps to create interest in the story.

Therefore, set it out clearly. Introduce the main characters of your story in this part.

The main body talks about the problem. It is here that you are supposed to clearly show, the problem or conflict between the main characters in your story. Sometimes the main body may be more than one paragraph.

However, take care not to write aimlessly just to fill up space.

Remember to stick to the topic. Make the problem stand out so that the reader understands the problem you are talking about.

Another part of the main body is the solution to the problem. Set it out separately in its own paragraph.

The conclusion is used to take care of any other issues that arose when you were talking about the main problem.

It is here that you can also make plans for the future of your story's main character. You can also show how your character's life will be different in the future.

In all these sections, remember to use correct grammar, proper sentence structure, enough different vocabulary, and proper organization of content.

Connectives will help you to link one idea from one paragraph to the next. Some of these connectives include: firstly, besides, in addition to, next, and many others.

Activity 3

Read the story How the Eagle and the Hen Became Enemies again. Identify the paragraphs that make the main parts of the story.

Activity 4

Write a simple story on any of the following.

- a) The reading and writing competition
- b) My sister's wedding
- c) My 13th birthday party
- d) The new school library

Activity 5

Read the following text carefully.

Types of composition

Not all compositions are based on stories. Some compositions may require that you:

- a) Recount an event
- b) Explain something
- c) Define a concept
- d) Contrast a fact

You need to read the instruction of the composition for you to know what the examiner requires. Here are the meanings of some of the words used for different types of compositions

Recount is the same as retelling a story or an event. For example, a composition may require that you recount the events of the 1994 genocide. In writing the composition, you have to tell the facts of the genocide as it happened without adding your views.

Explain means that you use your own words to talk about the topic you have been given. If necessary, use diagrams. Clearly label or name any diagram that you use.

Define means you say the accepted meaning of the topic that you have been given. Do not come up with a new meaning.

Contrast means that you give different results that are likely to happen. The easiest way is by having a flow chart as you are planning your writing. The flow chart will help you to clearly organise your thoughts as you write them.

Now retell the main points of the text you have read to your friend.

6.4 Understanding instructions in examinations

Examination tips

On the examination day, before you start answering any examination questions:

- Make sure you have enough writing materials (pens, pencil, eraser and sharpener where necessary).
- Read and understand the instructions on the examination paper. The instructions guide you on the total number of questions that you are supposed to answer. Understanding the instructions is the first step in passing examinations.
- Check to see that all your questions can clearly be read and that there are no blank pages on your question paper.
- Carefully read and understand each question. Examination questions are asked differently. Each question has a verb that tells you what the examiner expects.

For example:

- Underline: simply use a ruler and a pen or pencil to underline what should be underlined.
- Fill in the blank spaces.
- Rearrange the sentences or words or letters to form meaningful sentences or words.
- List/name/state means you just make a list of the main issues. Do not explain.
- Explain or describe means you give details in your own words to talk about the topic.

For example, Explain why a bat is called a mammal.

Explanation: A bat is a mammal because it has got hair on its body. It also feeds its young with milk.

- Write means you organize your thoughts and write following the introduction, body and conclusion system as we learnt earlier.
- Define means that you only give the meaning of the word in question. For example, define what a mammal is. You would say:

A mammal is a vertebrate which has hair and feeds its young with milk.

- Always think and plan before you start writing your answer. You can even organise your thoughts by writing them on rough paper first before you start writing. If you need rough paper, do not be shy to ask for some.

- f) Distribute your time according to the questions that you have. Do not dwell on one question for too long. Or if you find that you are unable to answer a given question, simply move to the next one. You will come back to the particular question when time allows.
- g) Allow for time to read your work again. This allows you to make corrections.
- h) Always write neatly. This helps the teacher to easily read what you have written.
- i) Where you are required to use a pencil, for example in drawing diagrams, use a pencil. If you don't have one, let the supervisor know.

Task

Your teacher will distribute sample examination papers.

Read through the examination papers. Identify the main verbs used in the questions and discuss how you should respond to the questions according to the instructions. Work on all the different sections and present your work in class.

Grammar point

For reporting exact words we often use speech marks. For example, Mary told her mother that she would not go to school, would be written as Mary said, “I will not go to school.”

Activity 3

Indiscipline in the school

The head teacher came to the assembly ground and everyone could tell that he was not happy. The P6 pupils had left the school grounds before time.

7.1 Describing prehistoric animals

Activity 1

Listen carefully as your teacher reads the following words and text. Read the words out loud after the teacher.

fossil dinosaur mammoth prehistoric palaeontology palaeontologist

There is a branch of science that specifically studies the remains of animals and plants. It mainly deals with animals and plants that lived or grew before human beings started keeping records. This means that these are very old animals.

The name given to this time is the prehistoric period. The remains of animals and plants that lived during this period are known as fossils. The people who study fossils are known as palaeontologists. The branch of science that studies fossils is palaeontology.

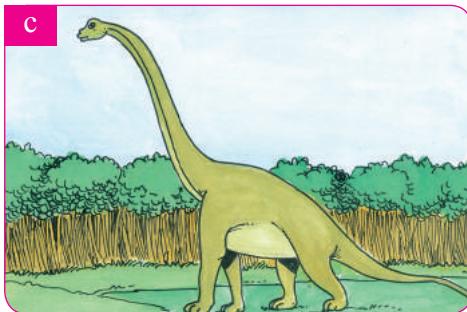

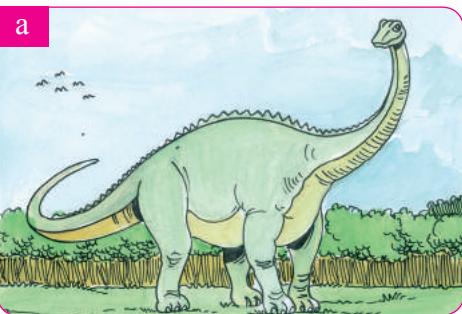

The most common animal that lived in the prehistoric period is the dinosaur. Most palaeontologists have studied dinosaurs in detail. However, there were also other animals that lived during this period. An example is the mammoth. This was an elephant that had hair unlike the elephants we know today.

Use a dictionary or the Internet to find the meaning of the new words in Activity 1. Read the passage again to see how the words have been used.

These parks are almost evenly distributed across the country. The east has Akagera National Park. The South has Nyungwe National Park and the north has Volcanoes National Park.

Rwanda is also rich in mineral deposits. Mining is done in Gifurwe and Rwinkwavu. Some of the minerals found include wolframite, cassiterite and coltan.

Activity 3

Read the passage and answer the questions that follow.

Man and the environment

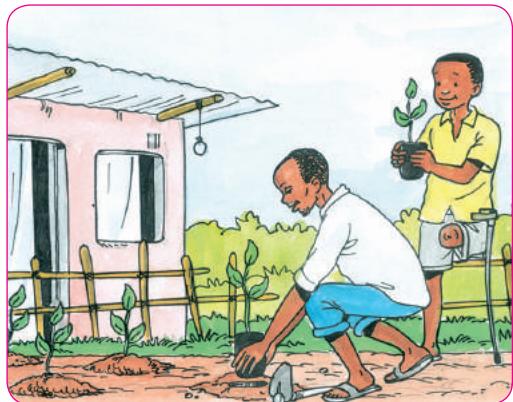

Man gets all his basic needs from the environment. If we do not take good care of the environment, man will starve and die.

What is man really doing to destroy the environment? Man is cutting down trees without planting others. This is called deforestation. Trees help in making rain, are home to wildlife and provide medicine.

More so, man is pouring industrial waste into water bodies like lakes and rivers. The wastes will end up poisoning all the water or will kill all things that live in the water.

Man is also carrying out illegal hunting called poaching. This will cause many important animals to become extinct.

If man plants more trees, he will make the earth green again. If man stops pouring garbage into the water, the water will be clean again.

Clean water is good for aquatic animals to live in. It is our responsibility to leave the environment better than we found it.

Questions

- a) Why is the environment important to man?
- b) What benefits do trees have?
- c) How important are water bodies to man?
- d) What will happen if man continues destroying the environment?
- e) What will you do to protect your surroundings?
- f) Discuss with your study partner the importance of having many trees in our country.
- g) Why do you think national parks in Rwanda should be protected?

Should is used to give advice. We use should to tell people what to do or how to do things. We use shouldn't in the negative.

Exercise 3

Use the table below to construct ten correct sentences.

We		smoke.
I		eat.
They	should	plant trees.
She	shouldn't	burn bushes.
He		protect the environment.

Grammar point

We use need to when we want to tell people what to do or how to do it. Use need to to make a suggestion is considered polite. The opposite is needn't.

For example

1. We need to protect the environment.
2. We needn't cut trees without planting others.
3. You needn't carry your umbrella today.
4. They need to read about animals.

Activity 4

Gatete: How much money is in the drawer mother?

Mother: I left a one thousand franc note. I think it will be enough.

Gatete: Okay, mother I will do everything as you have said.

Questions

- a) Discuss and write down four commands that Mother used to tell Gatete what to do.
- b) Discuss why it is important to keep our houses and surroundings clean. Present your work.

- c) Get in pairs and tell your friend why it is good to obey parents. Write down the answers in your notebooks and read them to the class.
- d) What lesson have you learnt from the dialogue?

Activity 5

Make your own dialogue about giving commands and act it out. One of you will take the role of a parent and the other a child.

Grammar point

When we want to report what was commanded, we change the sentence into past simple tense. Instead of saying ‘giving a command’ we can ‘tell’ a person what to do. That is why ‘tell’ changes to its past simple tense of ‘told’ when the command is reported.

For example

Mother told Gatete to sweep the house.

Exercise 2

Look at the sentences below. They are commands. Give a response to each as shown in the example.

For example

1. Sweep your room every morning.

Answer: I was told to sweep my room every morning.

2. Wash your clothes every day.

3. Pray before going to sleep.

4. Say sorry after making a mistake.

5. Respect your family members.

6. Sit and eat with the others.

7. Help your friends in doing work.

8. Greet all family members.

9. Care for the sick in your family.

10. Do not waste food.

9.3 Describing what parents require

Activity 1

Talk to one another about what your parents tell you to do. Say what your friend says to the class.

For example

- My parents tell me to go sleep early. What do your parents tell you to do?
- They tell me to avoid playing on the road. They say it is risky.
- Manzi's father tells him to fetch water every morning before coming to school.

Activity 2

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow. Share your answers with the class.

Fetching water

'I want someone to go and fetch me some water,' Mother called out.

Charles and I were still sleeping. We didn't want to leave our warm beds and go to the cold mountains just for water. Moreover, Mother would then use it for cooking sugarless porridge! We both pretended not to have heard.

"Boys, you should bring water for your porridge!" she loudly added.

We remained silent. None of us moved a step. We breathed under our blankets with our eyes peeping out to the door. Mother was sure we had heard. We were also sure that some punishment would follow.

We heard heavy footsteps coming to the bedroom.

I threw off my blanket and ran out. I snatched the jerrycan in front of the house and headed for the well.

Behind me, I could hear someone following me. I knew it was Mother! I increased my speed.

After some time, I got tired and reduced my speed. I quickly increased it again when I heard the steps getting close. I knew Mother's cane was about to hit my back.

I was relieved when I heard Charles calling me.

"It's me Robert, please wait!" he shouted. What a relief!

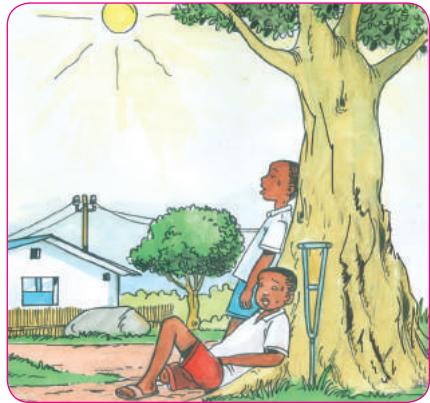

Soon Charles caught up with me. We were both breathing heavily. Charles and I were leaning on a tree to regain our breath.

“Listen,” Charles began, “we ought to obey Mother. She does so much to make sure we are happy and healthy.”

“That is very true, Charles,” I said.

“I think we ought to apologise to her also. What we have been doing is disrespectful,” Charles added.

“Come on, let’s hurry and fetch the water. She will be waiting for it,” I told my brother as we started running again.

Questions

- State the people in the story.
- What were the boys doing when Mother called them?
- Why did Mother need the water?
- What made the boys run outside?
- What advice did the brothers give to each other?
- Which lesson have you learnt from the story?
- Draw a relevant picture to go with the story and write a sentence about it.

9.4 Describing a family quarrel

- Sandra: I wanted to do my homework first.
- John: Why don’t you do it now?
- Sandra: Father told me to go to the market and buy food when I get home. I have to hurry and get home too.
- John: Father told me to go to the garden but I refused.
- Sandra/Eric: Refused!
- Eric: That was bad.
- John: Why? I cannot do everything!

- Sandra: You should obey your parents. Don't make them angry. We should help them when they ask us to do something.
- Eric: You ought to apologise to them too.
- John: Thank you... Now that I think about it, I was wrong. I will do my best to help my parents.

Questions

- Mention the three people in the conversation.
- What did Sandra want to do?
- What did her parents tell her to do?
- Why were John's parents angry?
- What advice did John get from his friends?

Grammar point

'Ought to' and 'ought not' are used to show when it is necessary to perform an action. They also talk about something that you expect will or will not happen. Ought not is the negative of ought to.

Look at the examples of ought below.

- Children ought to go to sleep after praying.
- You ought to knock at the door before entering.
- Children ought to obey their parents.
- Parents ought to care for their children.

Exercise 3

Choose the correct form to complete the sentences below.

- Children (ought to/ought not to) finish their homework before playing.
- Brothers and sisters (ought to/ought not to) yell at each other.
- We (ought to/ought not to) say sorry when we make mistakes.

Activity 2

Role play the interview below. Then answer the questions that follow.

Mutoni: What is your name?

John: My name is John Mugisha.

Mutoni: How old are you?

John: I am 13 years old.

- Mutoni: Do you often have family quarrels?
- John: We do have family quarrels, but not that often.
- Mutoni: What are the causes of such quarrels?
- John: I remember one between my two sisters which was over a book one of them lost.
- Mutoni: What do you do when such quarrels arise?
- John: I always try to stop them, but if I cannot then I look for an older person to help.
- Mutoni: When was the last time you had a quarrel in your family?
- John: Last week, I was busy doing my homework. My little brother decided to untether the goats and one of the goats was missing for three days. My father blamed it on me.

Questions

- How does Mugisha handle family quarrels?
- Why did Mugisha have a quarrel with his father?
- What does the word ‘untethered’ mean as used in the interview above?
- Get a friend and conduct an interview about family quarrels. Write down the replies and read them to your friend.

Activity 3

Write a story about a family quarrel that you heard or saw. How was it solved?

9.5 Saying why someone was angry

Activity 1

Read what Vicky and Amina are angry about.

I was angry with my sister because she had put on my new dress for church service.

How could she do that?

I wanted to wear that dress because it was still new.

When I told her to remove the dress, she refused.

I was too angry to go to church.

I was also angry with my sister. I was just home from school and I had walked a long distance to reach home. When I got home, my sister ordered me to go to the well to fetch water. The well is about three kilometres away from our home. I was really angry because she failed to sympathise with me, knowing very well that I was very tired.

Questions

1. Why were the two children angry?
2. Discuss and write down which of the two children had a good reason to get angry.

Activity 2

Write a story using one of the following sentence starters. Read your work to the class.

- a) I was watching cartoons on television when _____
- b) The teacher had already entered the class but Paul was still _____
- c) Jimmy was running very fast. He suddenly knocked me down. _____

Exercise 4

Recite the poem below and then answer the questions that follow.

I say sorry

When I make a mistake
When I don't follow instructions
I ought to apologise; I say sorry.
And all will be fine again.
When I don't obey my parents,
When I don't clean the house,
I ought to apologise; I say sorry.
And all will be fine again.

Questions

1. What is the title of the poem?
2. What does he have to do after making a mistake?
3. Mention two examples of mistakes that are given in the poem.
4. Why should one apologise for making a mistake?
5. Tell your study partner about a mistake you made and how you solved it.

9.6 Giving advice

Activity 1

Discuss and share the answers with your class.

- What would you tell your friend if you find him or her using dirty water to wash his clothes?
- What should you do if you find your friends playing on the road?
- What would you do if your friend is making noise while you study?
- What would you tell your friend if you found him smoking?

Activity 2

Read the following text. What do you think Mutoni's parents should do?

Mutoni is stubborn

Mutoni likes playing till late in the night. She does get home at the time her father has set for her to be home. She does not want to do house work. When she is punished, she runs and sleeps at the neighbour's house.

Grammar point

Remember 'should' and 'shouldn't' are used to give advice.

Look at the examples below.

- Children should obey their parents.
- We should apologise when we make mistakes.
- You should visit the dentist regularly.
- People should not wear dirty clothes.
- We should not stay out late at night.

Exercise 5

Make five sentences from the table below.

Parents
Children
I	should	respect our family members.
He	shouldn't	help our parents with house duties.
She		take children to school.
We		disobey their parents.

9.7 Talking about family rules

Activity 1

1. Read out loud the family rules below.
 - a) No one will miss a meal.
 - b) Everyone will wash him/herself.
 - c) All family members will pray before going to bed.
 - d) We will apologise for making mistakes.
 - e) Every family member will respect the others.
2. Do you have such rules at your home?

Activity 2

In your exercise books do the following:

- a) Make ten rules for your family. Use ‘will’ as shown in the examples above.
- b) Make a poster to show the rules that you have come up with.
- c) Practise some of the rules that you have come up with in a role-play about a family.

Grammar point

‘Will’ is a modal verb which helps us to talk about the future.

For example we can say,

Will they come here tomorrow?

Will can also be used to show that we intend to do something.

For example

I will follow all the rules at home.

This is because it is possible that you might choose not to follow the rules and therefore get punished. In a way, ‘will’ shows your intention.

Activity 3

Construct five sentences using will to show your intentions.

Exercise 6

Choose at least five words from the table below and construct correct sentences using them.

fetch	clean	angry	sorry	polite	respect	apologise	wrong

- b) What planet is closest to the sun?
- c) Which planets have rings?
- d) Which is the biggest planet?
- e) Which small planet was recently removed from the list of planets?

Activity 3

Read the text below.

Dwarf planets

Have you ever heard of dwarf planets? Dwarf planets are planets that are smaller than the moon.

There are five dwarf planets that have now been identified. These are Eris, Haumea, Makemake, Ceres and Pluto.

Pluto was recently demoted to a dwarf planet after astronomers confirmed that it was smaller than Eris. Of all the dwarf planets, Eris is the largest. Scientists also believe that there are many other dwarf planets that are yet to be discovered.

Task

Choose one of the dwarf planets and do research about it. Write short notes about it. Present your group's findings to the class.

Exercise 1

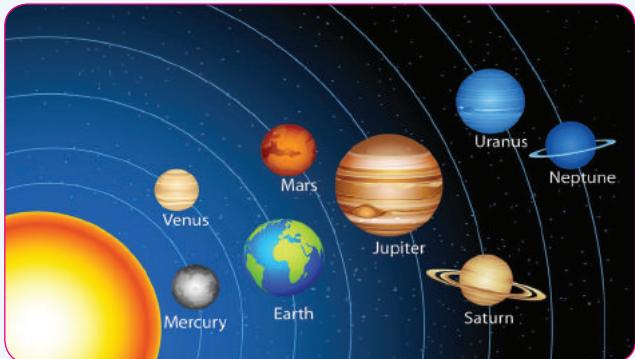

Read the text below and answer the questions that follow.

The solar system

The sun and the planets and other space bodies that move around it make up the solar system. One complete rotation around the sun is known as an orbit. There are 8 planets in the solar system. These planets are grouped into two groups.

The first group is known as the Inner Solar System. It is made up of Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars. These four planets are the ones that are closest to the sun. Another name for these planets is terrestrial planets because their surfaces are made up of rocks.

The second group is known as the Outer Solar System and it is made up of Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune. The other name for these planets is gas giants.

The inner and outer planets are separated by the asteroid belt.

An asteroid is simply a piece of rock. The asteroid belt is filled with rocks.

In addition to the planets and the asteroid belt, the solar system is also made up of moons, comets, dust, gas and dwarf or minor planets.

Questions

- What is an orbit according to the passage?
- State the elements that make up the inner solar system.
- What separates the inner planets from the outer planets?
- Explain the meaning of asteroid.
- Draw the solar system in your exercise books.

10.2 Describing distances in space

Activity 1

Study the information in the table below and answer the questions that follow. Present your work to the class.

Planets	Facts
1. Earth	About 93 000 000 miles away from the sun. Has one moon. Earth has a diameter of 12 750 km.
2. Venus	108 208 930 million kilometres from the sun. Has no moon. It has a diameter of 12 100 km.
3. Mercury	Estimated at 57.9 million kilometres from the sun. It is the closest planet to the sun. Mercury's diameter is 4 800 km.
4. Mars	It is 227.9 million kilometres from the sun. Its atmosphere is mainly composed of carbon dioxide. It has two small satellites called Phobos and Deimos. Mars has a diameter of 6 800 km.
5. Jupiter	It is 778.3 million kilometres from the sun. It has 63 known satellites. The key ones are: Ganymede, Calisto, Lo and Europa. Jupiter's diameter is 142 800 km.
6. Saturn	It is 1 431 million kilometres from the sun. It's diameter is 120 660 km. This is the only planet with a ring. It also has 62 known satellites.
7. Neptune	It is 4 498 million kilometres from the sun. It has 13 known satellites, the largest being Triton. Neptune's diameter is 49 500 km.
8. Uranus	It is 2 877 million kilometres from the sun. It has 27 known satellites. Major ones include: Titania, Oberon, Umbriel, Ariel and Miranda. Uranus has a diameter of 51 800 km

Questions

- Which planet is furthest from the sun?
- Which planet is closest to the sun?
- How far away is Uranus from the sun?
- What is the distance between the sun and the earth?

Activity 2

You will need balls or objects to represent the different planets, a metre rule, measuring tape and a pair of scissors.

- Rearrange the different objects in an imaginary orbit bearing in mind their distances from the sun (which is the middle object).
- Take measurements and convert them using the scale chosen.

At this level, we shall not get into the real measurement and calculations of space distances between the different elements in space as space scientists do. However, you are required to do some model measurement using scales that are representative to certain distances say 1 Astronomical Unit (AU) =10cm or 4m.

- Demonstrate the distance between your objects outside the class. You will be amazed at how far the tape can go if converted.
- Record your measurements and explain to the class how you arrived at the answers.

The sun and the moon

Both the sun and the moon are kings,
 They are kings of the sky.
 The moon and the sun are-for ever on war,
 The moon never faces the sun,
 The sun is always chasing the moon.
 When day time comes,
 The moon hides its face.
 In darkness, the moon, stronger,
 That's why the sun hides from darkness.
 And why all this?
 Two kings never on one throne.

Questions

- a) Where do the sun and moon live?
- b) Write a paragraph explaining why the sun and the moon are forever at war.
- c) Write your own short poem explaining the relationship between any two planets.

- Philip: Yes, sir. An astronaut is a person who travels to space.
- Astronaut: Very well, young man. And how do astronauts travel to space?
- Mary: They use a rocket, sir.
- Astronaut: True. Space is very far away from earth. One has to use a special vessel called a rocket to travel to space.
- Jane: Sir, have you ever been to the moon?
- Astronaut: Yes, Jane. I was the first man to walk on the moon. It was the best day of my life!
- Peter: That must have been a funny experience. Sir, does every planet have a moon like the one we see at night?
- Astronaut: Not all of them, there are two planets that do not have a moon. There are others that have one or two. There are also others that have very many moons.
- Mary: Wow, the planets with very many moons must be hot!
- Astronaut: No, Mary. Moons do not have any heat. In fact the planets that have the highest number of moons are the coldest.
- Philip: But why does the moon shine if it does not have heat?

Astronaut: What we see is a reflection from the light from the sun. It is just light. There is no heat.

Pupils: Thank you very much, sir. We have learnt a lot.

Questions

- Which vessel is used when travelling to space?
- What is the name of the astronaut?
- How many planets do not have moons?
- Why are the planets that have the highest number of moons the coldest?

Venus is hotter than planet earth.

Activity 5
